

Explore Skansen in 1 hour!

Would you like to know more? Visit Skansen's website or buy the guide book from the Skansen Museum shop at the main entrance.

- 1 Take the escalator up to Skansen's town quarter. The steps beside the Stora Gungan Tavern lead down to the industrial environment that dates from the 1920s. The belt drive in the roof helps to run the machinery at the Furniture Factor and the Engineering Works – producing furniture and turning metal.
– Take the steps back past the Stockholm Glassworks. From the square, the Pottery and the Bakery are close by.
- 2 Opposite the Bakery you will find the Tannery beyond the gate in the fence. Greet the town chickens and drop in on the homeless from the late 1800s. Continue through the small brown gate in the fence to the Printing Works, with its typical small town garden from the 1840s with a summer house and cultivated plots.
– Leave the Printing Works through the passage in the corner.
- 3 Take a peek through the window of the Bookbindery and Printer's before you are back on the town street. Ahead at the Ironmonger's house you leave the older town quarters for a more modern townscape..
- 4 At the Ironmongery, dating from the 1930s, you will meet ironmonger Herman, and in the Ironmonger's Apartment his wife Bojan.
– On the hill next to the brick building is Kafé Petissan, which serves coffee and homemade buns and biscuits. Further up you'll find the Herb Garden, which you pass through. After Päronparken play area you come to the Älvros Farmstead.
- 5 The Älvros Farmstead is a self-sufficient farm from northern Sweden dating from the early 19th century. Visit the main house to find out how essential it was to keep the fire going 24 hours a day.
– Turn back up towards the dance floor and head for the church tower. Market Street (Marknadsgatan), behind the stalls, has hosted Stockholm's largest Christmas market since 1903.
- 6 Seglora Church dates from the 18th century and is used for weddings, christenings and concerts.
– Continue along the church wall until you reach Oktorp Farmstead.
- 7 The Lundqvist family lived at Oktorp Farmstead from the 1870s. The farm's Linderöd pigs root around out of doors; they are an old native breed that thrives best when kept out doors, even in winter.
– Go around Oktorp Farmstead and past the timbered Skåne Farmstead, surrounded by buildings. A little further on you will reach a red building with a garden. This is Våla School from the 1910s. Opposite the school is the Farm Labourer's Cottage.
- 8 Two families would have lived in this 1920s cottage, the Farm Labourer's Cottage, while working on a large farm. They received payment in kind, in the form of accommodation and produce from the farm. The labourers at the cottage can tell you more about this system, which only came to an end in 1945.
- 9 Behind the Farm Labourer's Cottage take the shortcut past the mill and through the gate to Skogaholm, an 18th-century manor house.
– Stroll along the avenue of lime trees to the Öland windmills.
- 10 Beside the Öland Windmills you can take in the view of the sea approach to Stockholm. Why not enjoy a coffee at Skansen Terrassen before exploring the Solliden Stage, the biggest outdoor stage in northern Europe.
– The road past the Old Savings Bank from the 1840s leads to the escalator. Once you descend, your journey through time is over for now.

Do you have an extra hour? Turn the page!

With reservation for changes in opening hours and environments closed due to other projects.

Explore Skansen in 2 hours!

Would you like to know more? Visit Skansen's website or buy the guide book from the Skansen Museum shop at the main entrance.

- 1 Take the escalator up to Skansen's town quarter. The steps beside the Stora Gungan Tavern lead down to the industrial environment that dates from the 1920s. The belt drive in the roof helps to run the machinery at the Furniture Factory and the Engineering Works
 - producing furniture and turning metal.
 - Take the steps back past the Stockholm Glassworks. From the square, the Pottery and the Bakery are close by.
- 2 Opposite the Bakery you will find the Tannery beyond the gate in the fence. Greet the town chickens and drop in on the homeless from the late 1800s. Continue through the small brown gate in the fence to the Printing Works, with its typical small town garden from the 1840s with a summer house and cultivated plots.
 - Leave the Printing Works through the passage in the corner.
- 3 Take a peek through the window of the Bookbindery and Printer's before you are back on the town street. Ahead at the Ironmonger's house you leave the older town quarters for a more modern townscape.
- 4 At the Ironmongery, dating from the 1930s, you will meet ironmonger Herman, and in the Ironmonger's Apartment his wife Bojan.
- 5 Beyond the Ironmonger's house lies the Rose Garden. Swedenborg's Summerhouse was used by well-known 18th-century scholar Swedenborg for sitting and writing and playing his organ.
 - Follow the road up past the long red building, Röda Längan, and the Herb Garden. Continue to the Älvros Farmstead on the left-hand side.
- 6 The Älvros Farmstead is a self-sufficient farm from northern Sweden dating from the early 19th century. Visit the main house to find out how essential it was to keep the fire going 24 hours a day.
 - Turn back up towards the dance floor and head for the Bredablick tower. Go past the Swan and Carp ponds. You are now standing in front of Orsa Hill with its 23-metre-high maypole that is decorated all year round according to the old Dalarna custom.
- 7 On the other side of Orsa Hill you will find Lill-Skansen, the upper Seal Pool and the Summer Pasture Farm. The farm girls

- lived and worked at the Summer Pasture Farm over the summer, tending and milking the animals, and making cheese, butter and soft whey cheese from the milk of the mountain cattle and the Jämtland goats.
- 8 The road ahead leads to the reindeer. On the hillside below are the elk. You will also find the otters and Skansen's horses. Below the stable you will encounter the European bison, the lynx, the wolverines and the wolves.
 - En route to Oktorp Farmstead you will pass the Soldier's Cottage with its turfed roof and a red building from the 1850s. This is Ekshärad, where the district judge holds sessions.
- 9 The Lundqvist family lived at Oktorp Farmstead from the 1870s. The farm's Linderöd pigs root around out of doors; they are an old native breed that thrives best when kept outdoors, even in winter.
 - A little further on you will reach a red building with a garden. This is Våla School from the 1910s. Opposite the school is the Farm Labourer's Cottage.
- 10 Two families would have lived in the Farm Labourer's Cottage, while working on a large farm during the 1920s. They received payment in kind, in the form of accommodation and produce from the farm. The labourers at the cottage can tell you more about this system, which only came to an end in 1945.
- 11 Behind the Farm Labourer's Cottage take the shortcut past the mill and through the gate to Skogaholm, an 18th-century manor house.
 - Stroll along the avenue of lime trees to the Öland windmills.
12. Beside the Öland Windmills you can take in the view of the approach to Stockholm. Why not enjoy a coffee at Skansen Terrassen before exploring the Solliden Stage, the biggest outdoor stage in northern Europe?
 - The road past the Old Savings Bank from the 1840s leads to the escalator. Once you descend, your journey through time is over for now.

Do you only have one hour? Turn the page!

With reservation for changes in opening hours and environments closed due to other projects.